MRS. STÜARYT'S ADVICE.

Mrs. J. E. B. Stuart, widow of the famous Confederate general, has taken a strong stand in behalf of the reconciliation of Pickett-Buchanan Chapter, Daughters of the Confederacy, and its former auxiliary, which has been organized into an independent chapter. Mrs. Stuart made a strong address today to the seceding Daughters, and urged them not to impair the efficiency of the them not to impair the efficiency of the work here by persisting in their inten-tion of organizing an independent chap-of of organizing an independent chap-ter.

Only about a dozen of the members of the new chapter were present to hear her stirring appeal.

It is likely that the new chapter's or-ganization will be duly effected, and that the breach between it and the parent chapter will remain unhealed. The mat-ter has caused a notable social sensa-
